

Dear Researchers,

Since its first issue in 2009, the International Online Journal of Educational Sciences (IOJES) continues to contribute to the of Educational Sciences by serving academics and practitioners. We are glad to see this contribution has been increasing and the increase of IOJES citation rate in the international arena supports this situation.

We are planning to meet the researchers in a new electronic platform with a fresh outlook of IOJES journal by 2020. Access to the publications in this new electronic environment will be much easier and in this way our contributions to the academic field will become more important.

Being indexed by other respected international indexes is among the priorities of IOJES journal. The journal has been monitored for more than a year and we hope that we will get the results soon.

It is clear that the journal's progress in the field of scientific publishing is truly worthy of appreciation. This progress can be observed not only in quantity but also in quality. In this context, I would like to thank everybody, especially our researchers, who contributed to our journal.

Regards

Professor Dr. İbrahim KOCABAŞ
